HORRIBLE MURDER.
It is our most painful task to record the most horrible case of murder which has probably ever happened in Canada West. We have only imperfectly heard the details. THOMAS KINNAR, Esq., a Scotch gentleman of good family and fortune, was found on Sunday horribly murdered in his own house at Richmond Hill, sixteen miles north of this city, and the body thrust into the cellar.
Suspicion fell on his servants; one of them, a man named M'Dermot was traced into town with one of his female servants,—the other, his housekeeper, is missing, perhaps murdered also. Pursuit was made on Sunday night, and it being ascertained that the man and woman had gone over to Niagara by the morning boat, a steamboat, the Transit, was started off to Lewiston, and the man and woman were both fortunately caught there, brought back, and are now safe in the city jail. They had taken Mr. Kinnear's horse and wagon, and considerable property of his was found with them.
Mr. Kinnear had drawn some money from the bank on Friday, and it is presumed he was murdered on Saturday night. Great praise is due to Mr. Caprol, and Mr. Kingmill, of this city, for their activity in following the supposed guilty parties and capturing them in Lewiston.
We have since received the following communications from a gentleman in town, giving an outline of the matter:
